Actress/producer Shirly Brener gave birth on Sunday to her second daughter with husband Bruce Rubinstein. The delivery took place at a local Los Angeles hospital and the newborn was already named – Journey Elle. Israeli media reports today that the name was chosen by the proud parents as a symbol of their life journey thus far.

The new bundle of joy is baby sister to the couple's eldest daughter, Mila, who turned 7 just this past weekend and is already making a name for herself in Hollywood, bringing the Brener-Rubinstein clan a lot of naches. In a recent interview with AbbaNibi, Shirly Brener said that Mila's agents were already jokingly asking during her pregnancy about signing the future offspring as well. No word if agents were outside the hospital with paperwork and potential gigs for the tot.

Shirly Brener, whose off screen titles include Vice President of the Business Development Department for Radar Pictures and CEO of Brener Films, will unfortunately have to keep her maternity leave short as multiple upcoming jobs will have her up and running in a matter of weeks, with expected 2012 projects such as the sci fi series "Infected" and action movie "The Killing Time" this spring.
